Happy Mother's Day

May 11, 2014

4th Sunday of Easter

Although this Fourth Sunday of Easter is officially exactly that, because of our many traditions we celebrate a whole lot more on this day. It is also designated as Good Shepherd Sunday. As if that was not enough, in 1963 Pope Paul VI designated this Sunday as World Day of Prayer for Vocations. And because of when Easter fell this year, this year it is our traditional Mother's Day as well.

Throughout the various observances and commemorations, the theme of the Good Shepherd holds true, however. The readings for this Fourth Sunday of Easter ring true to the idea that Jesus is our shepherd. Is there a more beautiful psalm than Psalm 23? "The Lord is my shepherd; I shall not want." Being a good shepherd to others is the epitome of stewardship. Jesus demonstrated His love for us, to the extent that He gave His life so we might live, "By His wounds you are healed."

This image of a good shepherd who watches over the flock is paralleled by our priests, those who give their lives through vocations so that we might have the Eucharist and our faith. It is equally matched by the image of a mother, a person who lives out stewardship in part by watching over and caring for her children. Even President George Washington understood the splendour of motherhood: "My mother was the most beautiful woman I ever saw. All I am I owe to my mother."

SUPPORTING PARISH WITNESS, VITALITY: AIM OF CONFERENCE

The parish is the Church present in the neighborhood. If the call for a New Evangelization is to have local impact, it will largely be a result of the witness and vitality offered by your parish. To support your efforts, the Office for English Pastoral Services is organizing a parish-focused conference, November 13-15. Open to everyone involved or interested in parish life, more details will be available in June.
